

Central Florida Peripheral Neuropathy Support Group

Peripheral Neuropathy results from damage to the peripheral nerves. It can cause weakness, pain, loss of coordination, and sensory loss in the arms and legs. The disorder varies in severity, but in some cases it can be debilitating, or even crippling or fatal.

Too often neuropathy is discovered after it has already caused irreparable harm. However, if diagnosed early, it can often be controlled. Most people have never heard of it. Patients feel alone and without a place to turn to for help.

If you or someone you care about has neuropathy peripheral, participating in a support group can be a wonderful way to better understand and come to terms with your situation. The healing power of support groups comes from people with similar problems sharing their strength, hopes, and experiences.

Perhaps you've been diagnosed with Parkinson's or are someone who has lived with it for some time. Maybe you are a caregiver - the spouse, parent, or child of an individual who is dealing with this condition. All of you are welcome to be a part of the Waterman Village Parkinson's Support Group, where you will find yourself among people who are facing the same feelings, experiences and questions.

The group is committed to providing a caring, supportive, and hope filled environment where you can share experiences, gain support, and receive encouragement.
